Clear your mind, free your thoughts and be more engaged at work (and play!) – with Getting Things Done®

Getting Things Done (GTD) is a work-life management system for getting organized and staying productive. Its powerful framework to manage commitments, information and communication is based on a methodology that's a result of 30 years of in-the-field research and practice of productivity methods.

Widely recognized as the gold standard in personal and organizational productivity, GTD has helped countless individuals and organizations bring order to chaos. The goal is to spend less time doing the things you have to do, so you have more time for the things you want to do.

GTD enables greater performance, capacity and innovation. It alleviates the feeling of overwhelm, instilling focus, clarity and confidence.

Course Outline

- The Process - how can we think decisively and effectively about things that need to get done?
- The Five Phases of Workflow - a model for analysing and optimising the way we work every day
 1. Collection - reducing distraction and freeing up mental space by ensuring we have a complete inventory of things that need our focus, from emails to important thoughts that occur to us in the shower
 2. Processing - efficiently clarifying what the things we have collected mean to you, and how best to move them forward
 3. Organizing - creating an effective, leak-proof organizational system, using available tools and technologies, that works the way you want it to work
 4. Reflecting and Engaging - pausing regularly to align your decisions with your priorities, so that you can use your system with confidence
 5. Reviewing - a weekly review helps you stay clear and current so you can create your bigger picture

“The GTD system is a revelation.”

Fortune Magazine

“Getting Things Done offers help building the new mental skills needed in an age of multitasking and overload.”

*Sue Shellenbarger,
The Wall Street Journal*

“GTD allows me to be present and to show up fully in the moment.”

Who Needs GTD Training?

GTD is for executives, leaders and individuals who would like to be more productive and effective at work in less time with less stress and greater mental clarity. GTD can help one overcome distraction, procrastination, and uncertainty and help teams to delegate better, come away from meetings with a clearly defined sense of purpose, and align on shared goals in ways that ensure that the right things get done. The methodology works with existing software and tools, and can be highly customized to individual preference and work style.

Organisational Benefits of GTD

Companies that had individuals or teams attending the GTD training have experienced:

- Improved productivity as employees focus on right tasks and projects which create more stress-free, productive moments.
- A more positive work culture as employees can prioritise and get the right things done, without fear of forgetting the delegated tasks.
- Increased creativity in teams as employees are free from constant stress, giving them more time for strategic and creative thinking.
- Better work-life balance for the employees as they feel more in control, using practical skills that help reduce decision fatigue and focus on next actions.
- A win-win relationship between employer and employee as allowing employees to use a system that serves both their work and personal lives makes them feel benefited outside of work, and motivated inside.
